REDESIGN THE SONAR HOMEPAGE.

PROJECT CONTEXT

Sonar is a signal-based GTM intelligence and activation business. It helps B2B companies identify meaningful commercial movement, understand why an account matters now, and activate the right next action inside the tools their revenue team already uses.

Sonar is not an AI SDR agency, a generic cold-email agency, or a dashboard that merely creates activity. The core product is the intelligence layer between market movement and revenue action.

PRIMARY POSITIONING

Use this as the core category statement:

Signal-based GTM intelligence and activation.

Core promise:

Know which accounts are moving - and what to do next.

Core operating loop:

Detect -> Interpret -> Prioritize -> Personalize -> Activate -> Learn.

The buyer-facing output must be clear:

Why this account.

Why now.

Who to contact.

What to say.

DO NOT POSITION SONAR AS

- An AI-powered revenue command center
- An autonomous SDR workforce
- A platform that automatically generates pipeline without human judgment
- A generic outbound automation tool
- A collection of six AI agents
- A Clay, Apollo, Instantly, or tool-specific consultancy

Do not use fake client logos, fabricated performance claims, invented activity metrics, or dashboards that look like live product data when they are illustrative.

DESIGN DIRECTION

Keep the premium, dark, modern feel of the existing Sonar site. It should look like a serious revenue operating system: calm, high-trust, technical, and commercially sharp.

Use:

- Deep charcoal or near-black background
- Clean, premium sans-serif typography
- Strong whitespace and restrained motion
- Elegant product-interface visuals
- Teal/green accents used sparingly for priority, signals, and action
- A realistic sample signal feed or account-intelligence view

Avoid:

- Excessive glowing AI effects
- Cartoonish agent illustrations
- Dense blocks of text
- Overly futuristic hype language
- Fake counters for emails sent, pipeline created, meetings booked, or CRM records updated

Use one primary CTA across the entire page:

BOOK A SIGNAL BRIEFING

CTA microcopy:

A focused 30-minute working session to assess where signal-based GTM can create leverage in your motion.

SECTION 1 - HERO

Eyebrow:

SIGNAL-BASED GTM INTELLIGENCE

Headline:

Know which accounts are moving - and what to do next.

Subheadline:

Sonar detects meaningful commercial signals across your market, interprets what they mean for your ICP, and routes the right next play into the workflows your team already uses.

Primary CTA:

Book a Signal Briefing

Secondary text link:

Hero visual:

Show a premium product-style interface labeled:

SAMPLE SIGNAL FEED

or

ILLUSTRATIVE ACCOUNT INTELLIGENCE VIEW

Use example account cards/rows such as:

Account: Northwind Logistics

Signal: Hiring a VP of Sales

Fit: High

Why now: New sales leadership plus enterprise expansion signals a potential need to improve pipeline coverage and revenue execution.

Recommended play: Reach out to the VP of Sales and RevOps lead with a commercial-timing and account-prioritization angle.

Account: Vertex Cloud

Signal: Product launch plus pricing-page engagement

Fit: High

Why now: The company is introducing a new category while several high-intent signals indicate active commercial change.

Recommended play: Offer launch-motion intelligence and account prioritization support.

Under the visual, add:

Illustrative account intelligence view. Configured around your ICP, market, CRM, and revenue motion.

SECTION 2 - PROBLEM

Eyebrow:

THE GTM PROBLEM IS NOT ACTIVITY. IT IS TIMING.

Headline:

Most teams have enough data. They just do not know what matters today.

Body:

Your CRM is stale. Your reps are researching manually. Your outreach is built around lists rather than commercial movement.

Meanwhile, the accounts most likely to buy are changing in plain sight: leadership hires, revenue hiring, expansion, technology shifts, website engagement, public pain, competitor movement, and prior opportunities becoming active again.

The problem is not finding more contacts.

The problem is knowing:

Which accounts deserve attention.

Why they matter now.

Who to contact.

What to say.

SECTION 3 - BEFORE / AFTER

Headline:

From static lists to timely commercial action.

Before Sonar:

- Static account lists
- Manual research
- Generic outreach
- Disconnected tools
- Late reaction to buying signals
- Activity without prioritization

With Sonar:

- Signal-qualified accounts
- Commercial context attached to each priority
- Clear next-best plays
- Research and enrichment connected to action
- Reps focused on accounts that are actually moving
- A learning loop that improves future prioritization

SECTION 4 - HOW IT WORKS

Eyebrow:

FROM MARKET MOVEMENT TO REVENUE ACTION

Headline:

Sonar turns signals into plays your team can actually run.

Use three visual stages:

1. DETECT

Capture meaningful movement across target accounts, CRM data, website activity, hiring, leadership changes, technology changes, funding, market news, and public intent signals.

2. DECIDE

Resolve identity, enrich context, score relevance, and explain why the account deserves attention now.

3. ACTIVATE

Route the right account, contact, message angle, owner, and next action into the workflows your team already uses.

Close this section with:

The output is not "send more email."

It is a clear recommendation:

Why this account. Why now. Who to contact. What to say.

SECTION 5 - WHAT YOU GET

Eyebrow:

THE SONAR SIGNAL AUDIT

Headline:

Build the signal-to-action system around your actual revenue motion.

Body:

Sonar is not a generic automation install.

We map your ICP, account priorities, buying signals, data sources, workflows, and activation plays - then design the intelligence layer that makes your existing GTM stack more useful.

Deliverables:

- ICP and account-priority model
- Signal taxonomy and trigger definitions
- Data, research, and enrichment workflow design
- Scoring and prioritization logic
- Recommended activation plays
- CRM and outbound routing design
- Measurement framework

CTA:

Book a Signal Briefing

Do not show pricing unless it is explicitly added later by the founder. Keep the initial conversion focused on qualification and the Signal Audit.

SECTION 6 - WHO IT IS FOR

Headline:

Built for B2B teams with a real revenue motion - and too much noise around it.

Best fit:

- B2B SaaS and tech-enabled services
- Companies with an existing CRM and commercial stack
- Sales leaders who need sharper account prioritization
- Teams with pipeline inconsistency despite plenty of activity and tools
- Companies with meaningful ACV, clear buyers, and a willingness to act on better intelligence

Closing line:

Sonar is for teams that believe better timing beats more volume.

SECTION 7 - FOUNDER CREDIBILITY

Eyebrow:

BUILT BY GTM OPERATORS AND AI SYSTEMS ARCHITECTS

Headline:

Revenue leadership meets AI systems architecture.

Tiago Moro de Castro:

- $40M+ in closed enterprise SaaS and cybersecurity revenue
- $100M+ pipeline built and managed
- GTM strategy, outbound systems, and commercial execution across the Americas

Lucas:

- AI systems architecture
- Workflow automation and integrations
- Revenue intelligence infrastructure
- Operational systems designed for scalable execution

Only include claims that are true and defensible. Do not add client logos or testimonial quotes until real proof is available.

SECTION 8 - FINAL CTAHeadline:

The accounts that matter are already moving.

Body:

The question is whether your team sees the signal early enough to act.

Primary CTA:

Book a Signal Briefing

Microcopy:

No generic deck. No vague AI pitch. A focused conversation about where signal-based GTM can create leverage in your revenue motion.

FINAL CONVERSION RULES

- Keep one primary CTA only: Book a Signal Briefing.
- Make the outcome clear before explaining technology.
- Lead with commercial relevance and timing, not tools or agents.
- Keep copy concise, specific, and credible.
- Make every interface visual clearly illustrative unless it is live product data.
- Optimize the mobile layout as carefully as desktop.
- Retain the original site's premium design quality, but make the new page feel more truthful, differentiated, and commercially focused.
